Care made visible

A proposed listening and guidance network for the festival and its participating communities.

The role

Selected and prepared Green Badge hosts welcome people, listen without judgement, guide them to suitable festival resources and refer concerns through an agreed escalation route. The badge is not a medical credential.

The intended structure

Visible hosts across arrival and experience areas; a designated quiet space; clear shift and supervision arrangements; an agreed safeguarding process; professional referral partners; and confidential incident handling.

Preparation before deployment

Appoint a responsible care lead and qualified partners. Agree role boundaries, selection, training, escalation contacts, supervision, safeguarding, confidentiality and incident review. Confirm these arrangements before activating a public care service.

How partners can contribute

Provide appropriate training, professional referral capacity, hosting support, a quiet-space resource, programme design or supervised volunteers. Institutional adoption after the festival should be designed and agreed separately.

The public invitation

Care organisations and prospective volunteers can enquire about helping develop the programme. No professional service, training credential or response-time guarantee is created by this brief.
